4.26

1. Homework shall be used to reinforce or enrich content and skill. Homework in the elementary school should not exceed sixty (60) minutes per night. It should never be assigned as a disciplinary measure. It should be thoroughly understood by the student before it is assigned. Homework should not be assigned on holidays.
2. On the middle school and secondary levels, homework may be necessary if all students are to successfully complete the work required during any school year. However, each teacher should consider the ability of the student, the assignments of the other teachers, and the purposes of the work when making home assignments. Generally speaking, an assignment should not require over an hour to complete. The total homework of any student should not require over two (2) hours for any one (1) day.
